The Education Policy Fellowship Program (EPFP) is a professional development program that provides emerging leaders in education and related fields with the knowledge and networks to advance the core issues of education policy. This program is a critical resource for individuals, organizations, and the state to increase knowledge about education policy and linkages between policy and practice. EPFP's mission is to develop leaders in public and private organizations who have the capacity to create and implement sound public policy to improve outcomes for children and youth.

Over a nine month commitment, Fellows concentrate on three program strands: public policy, leadership, and professional networking. Fellows will remain in their full-time positions and use their work environment as the context for examining important leadership and policy issues in Georgia.

EPFP is not just another professional development program.

The program brings Fellows and ideas together through a variety of onsite learning activities designed to create a personal development laboratory for applying new insights and for cultivating new skills. Participants will hear and discuss education policy with respected policymakers from across the state and nation. At the end of the year, Fellows will be better informed, more skillful advocates for sound public policy.

Major program components consist of: (1) monthly colloquiums that provide a comprehensive, multi-faceted approach to learning, (2) a national forum that convenes Fellows from across the nation and (3) additional opportunities to experience and reflect on education policy.

EPFP helps build both a state and national network of professionals with a track record of accomplishment. EPFP alumni work in a variety of sectors from which they impact education policy and create real change.

ENROLLMENT IS LIMITED.
APPLY TODAY!

Across the state of Georgia, professionals continually enter into arenas that impact public education. Within the legislature, school boards, school districts, businesses, social service agencies, educational organizations, foundations, and other nonprofit organizations are talented individuals who have a unique opportunity to influence education policy at the local and state levels. To maximize this impact, these individuals need adequate knowledge and training about both the issues and the policies - federal, state and local - that impact student learning.

Apply to become an EPFP Fellow if you have:

- A passion for education policy and a desire to improve opportunities for all of Georgia's children
- A track record for making things happen both inside and across agencies/organizations
- A commitment to personal and professional development
- A full-time, professional position with substantive work experience
- A bachelor's degree or its equivalent
- The endorsement and financial support of your employing organization

What is my commitment if I am accepted as an EPFP Fellow?

- Participate in 10 sessions over the nine month period including a welcome reception, an overnight retreat, seven monthly colloquiums, and a graduation ceremony
- Attend a national forum focusing on policy
- Share your experience and knowledge with other Fellows through inquiry, discussions, and presentations
- Conduct independent study and research by reading materials in advance, preparing questions, and completing a self-designed project related to issues explored in the program

How will my organization benefit from my participation in EPFP?

Employers gain:

- Access to a professional program with a proven track record
- Better informed, more skillful employees who understand policy making and the interconnections of education with other sectors
- Employees who are prepared to assume greater leadership responsibilities
- Employees equipped to make dynamic, research-based contributions to education policy and practice
- Expanded professional networks that enhance the organization's ability to access key leaders and decision makers who shape policy on behalf of children and youth

What is my employer's commitment in supporting my participation?

- To be sensitive to EPFP meetings and forum by allowing release time from work
- Pay tuition of $2,500 plus all travel-related expenses to the national forum and monthly colloquiums

ADDED VALUE OF EPFP!

Our Fellows share the value of their experience :

"A strong education policy does not emerge without thoughtful engagement of the factors influencing that policy. Through EPFP I have listened, learned, and bantered about the issues that we in Georgia face from urban, suburban, and rural systems to immigration issues, and from virtual learning opportunities to property tax funding dilemmas. The experience I had with my fellow EPFP colleagues in examining the policy considerations was dynamic and very rewarding. I highly recommend EPFP to those who are interested in helping Georgia continue to develop strong education policies making Georgia very competitive."

- Kami Benson Luigs, EPFP Class of 2012
Program Manager, GE

"I highly recommend the Partnership's professional learning opportunity to all Georgia leaders who want to stretch their thinking and expand their knowledge of critical education policy issues in Georgia. Hearing from outstanding Georgia policy experts expanded my understanding of key education policy issues, while interactions with EPFP colleagues from diverse fields broadened my ability to think both strategically and creatively on a range of education policy issues."

- Gale Hulme, EPFP Class of 2011
Executive Director, Georgia Leadership
Institute for School Improvement

"As an Education Policy Fellow in the inaugural Georgia class, I experienced professional development that crossed sectors, professions and geographic boundaries. Thanks to extensive reading and thoughtful presentations from education experts, I bonded with the Fellows at the monthly colloquiums and national seminars. I hope my colleagues in philanthropy will take advantage of this Education Policy Fellowship because it is more engaging and relevant than graduate school and Georgia needs more informed education advocates!"

- Atiba Mbiwan, EPFP Class of 2009
Associate Director, The Zeist Foundation

COMMITMENT & ENDORSEMENT

The Georgia Education Policy Fellowship Program requires a significant commitment of time and energy. Participation involves an opening session/overnight retreat, seven colloquiums, Washington Policy Summit in Washington, DC, and the completion of a group project. Additionally, there are a number of activities pertaining to program content that Fellows will be encouraged to attend. The program tuition, plus travel costs for the Washington Policy Seminar and colloquiums are paid by the Fellow's employer/sponsor. A minimal amount of financial assistance is available. If you would like to be considered for partial aid, please contact the Georgia Partnership office after class selection.

With the understanding that the maximum benefits are achieved through full participation by the EPFP Fellow in all meetings and the national conference, the Fellow and the Fellow's sponsor hereby agree that the Fellow will participate fully in the program. Failure to attend mandatory sessions (Overnight Retreat and Washington Policy Seminar) and/or more than two absences from other program activities may result in dismissal from the program.
